

INTRODUCING

[M]EDNEXT, a program sponsored by the JP Morgan Chase Foundation and created by the Manufacturing Advocacy and Growth Network (MAGNET), connects established manufacturing companies to critical biomedical knowledge and resources that will help them diversify their revenue streams, create jobs, and strengthen the local economy.

Why [M]EDNEXT?

- Hands-on assistance to help your company sell into Northeast Ohio's growing biotech industry
- Diversify your revenue and inspire innovation in your company
- Grow our region and your company

[M]EDNEXT offers:

- Workshops and education to help prepare you to supply to the medical device market
- Assessment, planning, and implementation assistance
- Network with similar manufacturing companies and potential customers
- No cost to participate

Is My Company Qualified?

[M]EDNEXT seeks companies that are looking to:

- Supply to a Medical Contract Manufacturer or Medical Device Manufacturer (piece parts that go into medical devices)
- Have a third-party registered ISO 9001, AS9100, or TS16949 Quality Management System in place
- Operate in one of the following process categories: Precision Injection Molding, Precision Machining, Precision Investment Casting, Precision Stamping, Electronics, Precision Assembly, Packaging and Labeling, and Custom Capital Equipment Manufacturing
- Minimum requirements: 20 employee minimum and located in Northeast Ohio

Upcoming [M]EDNEXT Workshops

First workshop in February with monthly sessions continuing through August

- Understanding the Medical Device Industry/Biomedical Industry
- Understanding the Typical Customer-Related Requirements for a medical part supplier, and Overview of ISO 13485/FDA Quality System requirements
- Understanding the Biomedical Supply Chain and Developing a Plan to get into Biomedical Markets
- Finding Your First Customer and Understanding Their Needs
- Having a Current Medical Component Supplier - Discuss: Adapting Your Manufacturing Company to Biomedical
- Applying Additive Manufacturing to the Biomedical Sector
- Networking Event with Medical Contract Assembly Companies

Join [M]EDNEXT today - No cost to join!
Email Dennis Rosa at dennis.rosa@magnet-work.org for more information.

JPMORGAN CHASE & CO. VALTRONIC™